Diving Board Test

Persons taking the diving board test will first jump or dive off the diving board into the deep water. They must then tread water for ten seconds. From there they must swim, unaided, on their stomachs (freestyle, breaststroke or doggy paddle) to the blue pole to the left of the diving board. From there, they may push off the bottom and return to the ladder next to the diving board, swimming in the same fashion as they did going to the blue pole. All persons will have a lifeguard accompanying them for safety. It is not possible to pass this test if said person receives assistance from the lifeguard at any time during the test. Persons may only take the diving board test once per day.

Dock Test

Under the age of 14 must take the test to go out to the dock. Persons taking the dock test start by jumping off the diving board so we know they have the mobility to resurface then float on their back for ten seconds. From there, they must swim (unaided) on their stomachs (freestyle, breaststroke or doggy paddle) to the dock. Once at the dock, they must tread water for thirty seconds (without resting on the dock before or after). They will then return to the roped off section of the lake, swimming in the same fashion as they did going to the dock. All persons will have a lifeguard accompanying them for safety. It is not possible to pass this test if said person receives assistance from the lifeguard at any time during the test. Persons may only take the dock test once per day.
